I. ELIGIBILITY

A. Member Clubs

APPENDIX III

HCRA CSEC RECOMMENDATIONS

[rev. 01/98]

I. FIBERGLASS CANOES

- A. Any fiberglass molded canoes made in Hawaii may be exempted from waterlining procedures provided that there have been more than ten canoes made out of the same mold, all of which have passed the “waterlining” procedures.
 - 1. The manufacturer shall submit a paper certifying that the canoe meets the HCRA Hawaiian Canoe specifications. Included with the document shall be the hull “number,” weight at time of completion, date of completion, other information as required, and the name of the canoe builder and accompanying signature.
 - 2. In the event the canoe does not meet the HCRA Hawaiian Canoe specifications, the manufacturer shall be responsible for bringing the canoe into specification standards. Otherwise the manufacturer shall be subject to penalty as specified by HCRA.
- B. If necessary, it is understood that the HCRA CMC (canoe measurement committee) shall have the right to waterline any canoes out of these molds at any time.
- C. Each canoe produced or coming out of an approved mold shall not be subject to any further fiberglass work (repair, modification, alteration, or change) in or on any of the areas affected by the waterline measurements.
- D. There is an affirmative duty by the club or owner to report any repair, modification, alteration, or change in the configuration, shape, or design of a canoe hull where waterline specifications are measured.

II. KOA CANOES

All koa canoes must meet the Hawaiian canoe specifications as set out in HCRA Rules Addendum A. In the event a koa canoe is extended, altered, modified, enlarged, patched or repaired, and such changes effect the waterline or critical areas of where waterline measurements are involved, said koa canoe shall be re-waterlined and approved for racing, by three approved individuals from the CMC, none of whom have an interest in the canoe or club.

III. WEIGHING OF CANOES

Koa canoes – no seat covers or rails shall be permitted on the canoe to achieve the 400# racing weight.

IV. WATERLINING PROCEDURES

The CSEC recommends that when a canoe is being “waterlined” the CMC members be required to use a level for the purposes of balancing a canoe. As such, the committee recommends the addition of a Rule: When the canoe is rigged and sitting in the water, prior to marking the waterline points, a level shall be placed at the “0” point (center of canoe), extending horizontally across both gunnels, to make sure the canoe is resting level in the water (i.e. from side to side and not bow to stem).

V. CSEC DISCUSSION AREAS – FOR INFORMATION ONLY

A. HULL

It is recognized that canoe builders and manufacturers are making physical changes to the inside hull. Specifically, between seats #3 and #4, on the Bradley fiberglass canoes, the “foam core” is left out to provide rigidity to the canoe, but also creating a “catchment area” for water, such that it provides easier access to bailing water. The CSEC believes that this alteration does not violate the current existing rules (Hawaiian, foot support, waterline area).

Therefore, the CSEC approves of this modification to the inside of the hull. However, there are certain guidelines that this “catchment” area must meet. These guidelines are as follows:

1. The physical design must not be such that it can be used as a foot support for the paddlers located in that area where the “catchment” is located.
2. The depth of the design shall not be more than one inch in depth.
3. The appearance of the inside of the hull, as observed by CMC members, must be reasonably even (bottom and sides).

B. WOOD PADDLES

All paddles must be made out of wood. Protective coverings are acceptable – e.g. varnish, varathane, fiberglass with resin. However, paddles that are of non-wood base, but have a wood-like finish or laminated wood covering (e.g. over Kevlar), or laminated wood handles with a non-wood center are NOT acceptable. Paddles with no wood are

NOT acceptable for racing. Black Bart paddles are NOT acceptable for racing. The Savage River paddles are NOT acceptable under the current race rules.
